And why call ye me, Lord,
Lord, and do not the things
which I say?

Whoever cometh to me, and
heareth my sayings, and doeth
them, I will shew you to whom
he is like:

He is like a man which built an house, and digged deep, and
laid the foundation on a rock;
and when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently upon
that house, and could not shake
it: for it was founded upon a rock.

But he that heareth, and doeth
not, is like a man that without a foundation built an house upon the earth: against which the stream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell; and the ruin
of that house was great. —St.
Luke 6:46-49.

WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Thinking of Sheep?

Anyone who intends to buy
commercial breeding ewes this fall should do it early. Too often by the time local farmers get around to looking for ewes the best ones have already been bought by eastern and U.S. buyers. If you want help in locating ewes to buy, contact this office
or write directly to the Livestock Branch, Alberta Department of Agriculture, Edmonton. It is suggested that you should start getting information no later than August 15th.

Farm Labour:

Good farm help is becoming harder and harder to find. This is particularly true where help
is wanted on a seasonal basis
only. The farmers who are having the least trouble are those who hire their men on a full time basis and who provide suitable
housing and pay satisfactory salaries. Of course men must earn their pay and so the hired man must have work to do all year. This may mean expanding some enterprise so that the hired man can be kept busy at it. A man is more likely to take interest and pride in his job if he is responsible for an enterprise than if he has to put in an hour or two at something and then look for something else just to keep busy. Another help is to provide a bonus or incentive
payment at the end of the year.

Treasurer, Village of Irma.

News Report From Edmonton

By Ken Mason

Social Crediters laid the ground-work last week for an attack on one of their biggest problems: how to maintain good government with no effective Opposition in the House.

Meeting at a party caucus here during the week, the 61 Social Credit members elected June 16, discussed a scheme under which the party would provide itself with an Opposition from within its own ranks.

Here's how it will work: committees of Social Crediters will be set up to act as watchdogs on various government departments. The committees will attempt to handle the job done quite capably by the Opposition over the past four years — the job of uncovering loopholes in the government's legislative program.

Much of the committee work is likely to be internal, which means the public won't hear the shouting, desk-pounding fights among members of the governing party over specific pieces of legislation.

And there is almost certain to be no disagreement over matters of principle behind government programs. That will still take place behind the closed doors of the party caucus. Premier Manning has told his followers he wants more of them to take part in House debates, in an effort to stimulate "round table" discussions aimed at airing all sides of a problem.

But no matter how hard the government tries to make House sessions lively and interesting, most matters will still be threshed out in closed caucus long before they reach the House.

So if there's going to be any hard-hitting debate, it will have to come from the four Opposition members who will be free to criticize the government all they want.

Last week's meeting approved the committee idea in principle. The committees, with five or six members each, probably will be formed at the next caucus around the end of October.

In one sense, the committee members will make up a sort of shadow cabinet. By devoting their time to specific departments, backbenchers will pick up better than average knowledge of those departments. The scheme could give the government a reserve of cabinet material for the future.

The committee idea is probably the only source open to Premier Manning in view of his party's resounding victory in June. House sessions must be kept lively, or the government will be accused of dictating to the Social Credit caucus. And Premier Manning realizes the Opposition performed a service in the past by spotting errors and loopholes which could have embarrassed the government had they not been corrected.

No matter how freely Social Credit M.L.A.'s are allowed to speak in the House, the prospect is for a relatively dull four years. Can you imagine lively quotes like "the final and irrevocable act of folly" (used by Harper Prowse to describe the dividend plan) coming from an assembly of 61 Social Crediters?

BOUQUETS THIS WEEK go to those responsible for planning the state garden party for Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Some 1,850 invited guests attended the affair on the spacious grounds of the Legislative Building. The Queen, smiling and radiant, mingled freely with the crowd, stopping occasionally to speak to groups representing provincial organizations.

The weather was discouraging the night the royal couple arrived in Edmonton, but on the day of the garden party the sun shone brightly from a blue sky dotted with white clouds.

An unsung hero of the affair was 37-year-old John Schroder, government grounds supervisor. He was responsible for putting the Legislative grounds in shape for the royal luncheon, and they never looked better.

ALBERTA'S FORESTS were in grave danger last week as continued hot, dry weather created the worst fire hazard in years. In an effort to protect them, Lands and Forests Minister Norman Willmore signed an order restricting travel in a 18,000-square-mile area of western Alberta.

HOLIDAY on WHEELS

(By Tun)

It isn't unusual for prairie province dwellers to go East to bring a new car or truck home from the factories or assembly plants in Ontario. This is what Bob and I decided to do during the two weeks in July when we had to shut down the shop in order to give the staff a holiday. It is impossible to carry on without a staff, so why not the boss take a holiday too!

Leaving Viking at midnight of June 27th aboard the CNR continental, it was raining, and had been raining for several days, and this kept on until near Toronto at 7 a.m. June 30. Waking up early to have a look at the countryside in Ontario, we found the rail fences are still there dividing the farms into small patches. We heard that many rail fences had been sold to furniture companies as the wood was real hardwood. It looked to us that the Ontario farmers had built their big two-storey houses first and their barns afterward. This has been the reverse out west.

In Toronto the big hotels and stores were all decorated for the Royal Visit. The royal yacht, in all its splendor, was moored in the harbor. Many people were at the pier giving the royal yacht the once over.

At 10:30 a.m. we boarded the train for Oshawa, a city about the size of Camrose, only 39 miles from Toronto. Here is where General Motors have their main assembly plant in Canada. We taxied out to the plant and introduced ourselves by handing a note from Golka's Garage, local dealers. As it was 12 o'clock noon, we were invited to have lunch in the staff cafeteria seating over 500.

We went on a tour of the plant together with a number of others from the prairie provinces who were on the same errand as we. The visitors were taken around the huge assembly plant in 3 low-wheeled carts drawn by a small tractor. The various steps in assembling a car, from bolts and nuts to the finished product, were shown during the drive around the plant. Workmen were stationed all along the moving assembling line, each man adding some part to the car as it moved slowly along until it came off the line where it was given a rigid standing test on a sort of a roller-type skids that turned the back wheels only. Then it was driven off to give it the last inspection. A finished car was coming off the line every minute.

After a short while, our station wagon was brought out all ready to go, and the master mechanic said, "take it away." This was quite late in the afternoon, so after consulting the map supplied by the AMA, we headed

POWER

FROM ALBERTA'S "UNKNOWN COUNTRY"!

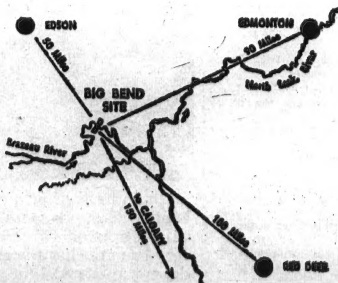

New multi-million dollar Brazeau River Project . . . another forward step in Calgary Power's long-range planning to maintain LOW-COST POWER

CALGARY POWER LTD. has a multi-million dollar belief in Alberta's progress! While serving the province today, the company plans and builds ahead to maintain efficient, low-cost service tomorrow.

Latest news of Calgary Power's long-range expansion program comes from one of the most isolated regions of Alberta — the lower reaches of the Brazeau River. In this virtually unknown area of dense forest and muskeg, work is under way on a new power project that will benefit, in particular, residential consumers.

When completed in 1964 this important hydro project will complement the 144,000-KW base-load thermal plant at Wabamun. The new powerhouse and dam (towering two hundred and thirty feet above the bedrock of the river) are designed for economical peak-load power. From the "big bend" of the Brazeau will flow low-cost, dependable power for the "busy periods" when it's needed most!

Watch for further reports on the Brazeau Development — one more example of constant forward-planning at Calgary Power Ltd.

For today's farming you need the new features of Massey-Ferguson machines

Today new farming methods; new technical developments and new engineering advances bring constant change and improvement in tractors, combines and other farm machines.

Old style machines can't give you the ease of handling and speed you want, they don't have the labour saving features you need and they don't give you the money-making ability to help you farm profitably. Obsolete equipment doesn't have what is needed to meet the demands of farming today.

Move ahead with the latest Massey-Ferguson machines and free yourself of the handicap of trying to farm modern with out of date equipment. Ask your local Massey-Ferguson dealer for full particulars about the latest models.

Pulpwood Logs on the Ottawa River, with the nation's parliament buildings in the background, symbolize the importance of the forest to Canada. Through pulp and paper, the forest harvest brings in more than $1 billion a year from sales abroad. Increasing public awareness of the importance of these world markets which directly and indirectly generate income and employment for hundreds of thousands of Canadians, was called for in a brief presented recently to a committee of S.P.A. studying the nation's natural resources. Forestry research and tax incentives to promote better forest management were held by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association prior to be the most promising means of promoting greater use of our forest resources and the orderly expansion of the industries based upon them.
